- a. Special withdrawal right of the account holder and authorized persons.

The account holder may withdraw from the account and may terminate all agreements related to the maintenance of accounts and its debiting/crediting. This right is limited if the accounts have been frozen/blocked by order of the competent authorities to which the law recognizes this right or when these accounts have been offered as a guarantee at the request of the account holder himself. Also, the account cannot be closed if it is linked to other active products that have not been closed with the bank (Credit Card, OVD, Loan, etc.).

The authorized person(s) may also withdraw from the account and may conclude all agreements related to the maintenance of accounts and its debiting and crediting, but the aforementioned right is limited or not recognized if this right is expressly limited in the act of authorization received by the Bank and based on which the authorized person(s) is/are registered as such in the current account(s).

b. Granting and terminating representation rights

Authorization of a third party to carry out transactions from an account may only be granted by its account holder. Cancellation of this authorization by the account holder leads to the termination of these powers of representation. Such cancellation is not effective until it has been accepted in writing by the Bank. It is the responsibility of the account holder to immediately make the act of cancellation of the authorization available to the Bank, notifying the latter in writing. The Bank is not liable for the actions performed by the authorized person whose powers of representation have ended if the Bank has not been notified of this fact by the account holder.

c. Closing accounts

The account holder can close the account individually at any time, always after settling the liabilities carried in the account or unpaid commissions in favor of the bank. Also, the account cannot be closed if it is linked to other active banking products that have not been closed with the bank (Credit Card, OVD, Loan, etc.).

(9) Banking transactions on behalf of juveniles

Any individual under the age of 18 is considered a minor. The parents or legal guardian act in place of the minor who has not reached the age of 14 by activating only one/several accounts. The relationship can further be expanded by activating a term deposit account in the name of the minor.

Minors who have reached the age of fourteen.

-A minor between the ages of 14 and 18.

An individual in this group is legally capable of acting alone, without the presence of parents or legal guardians if income or savings are provided by his/her work. To prove this, he/she must present an employment contract, Social Security Number, a certificate from the tax office, or a certificate of employment from the employer. In cases where the income or savings in his accounts have been benefited from the deposits of third parties (parents, grandparents, etc.) the minor may act with prior approval from the legal representatives.

An individual of this group has the right to administer his own property, but always with the prior consent of the parents/legal guardian. Upon reaching the age of 18, the minor automatically passes into adult status and acquires the right to act alone in bank accounts without the need for the prior consent of the parents/guardian, therefore the person enjoys full capacity to act in his accounts. From this moment on, the parent/legal representative no longer enjoys any right to act in the child's account.

(10) Dormant accounts

A bank account is transferred to the "DORMANT" status if no transaction has been carried out by the client for a period of 12 months from the last transaction, except for automatic transactions generated by the Bank's system and transactions related to the execution of the amounts found in it, in favor of third parties or in favor of the bank for obligations that the client has towards them. The account is transferred to the "sleeping" status regardless of the balance in the account. The client may appear at the bank to activate a dormant account, according to the conditions and documentation determined by the Bank.

When the account has a positive balance and for 12 consecutive months, the account is not closed, but is not active (and no transactions can be performed). In the case when the account still has funds even after the last action initiated by the Client, the system will continue to charge commissions until the valid account balance is zero. In the case where the account has a zero balance and there is no activity for 12 consecutive months (365 days) from the last action initiated by the client, it is closed. In this case the system accumulates commissions only for 6 months and the account will be automatically closed after 12 months from the last action of the client on the account.
