It is the responsibility of the account holder to immediately submit the revocation act of the authorization to the Bank, notifying the latter in writing. The Bank shall not be held liable for transactions executed by the authorized person whose representation rights have expired if it has not been notified about this fact by the account holder.

Furthermore, the relationship can be expanded by activating a time deposit account on behalf of the juvenile.

Juveniles who have reached the age of fourteen.

-A juvenile/minor aged between 14 and 18

An individual of this group is legally entitled to act alone, without the presence of the parent or legal custodian if the income or savings are provided by his/her job. To prove this, he/she must submit employment contract, social insurance number, tax office certificate, or employment certificate issued by the employer. In cases when the income or savings in his accounts are benefited from the deposits of third parties (parents, grandparents etc.), the juvenile/minor may act based on the prior approval of the legal representative.

An individual of this group has the right to administer his/her assets, but always with the prior consent of the parent/legal custodian.

When the juvenile reaches the age of 18, he/she automatically gains the adult status and acquires the right to act alone in bank accounts without the need to obtain the prior consent of the parent/custodian, so the person enjoys full capacity to operate and use his/her accounts. From this moment the parent/legal representative no longer enjoys any right to operate the child account.

(8) Dormant accounts

A bank account is classified under "DORMANT" status if no transaction has been performed and executed by the customer for a period of 12 months from the last transaction, except for automatic transactions generated by the system of the Bank and transactions related to the execution of the amounts found in it, in favor of third parties or in favor of the bank for obligations that the client owes to them. The account is classified under "dormant" status regardless of the account balance. The customer has to come to the bank to activate a dormant account, according to the terms and conditions and documentation specified by the Bank. When the account has positive balance and for 12 months consecutively the account will not be closed, but it is not active (actions cannot be taken). In the case when the account still has available funds after the last transaction initiated by the Customer, the system will continue to apply and charge commissions until the zeroing of the account balance.
